

JEFFERSON ADVANCEMENT

THE IMPACT OF ANNUAL GIVING

Annual giving is one of the most powerful ways that alumni, parents, and friends can demonstrate their belief in the mission of the College and support students and faculty. Jefferson College of Health Sciences is not a state-supported higher learning institution and therefore relies on tuition income to provide funding for operating expenses. Tuition pays much less than the costs of operating the College each year.

The Jefferson College of Health Sciences Education Foundation needs to grow to provide more significant and consistent scholarships and other support for our deserving students. During fiscal year 2003-2004, several scholarships were not provided due to lack of donations or contributions toward to the scholarship fund. Most JCHS students rely on financial aid and scholarships for tuition assistance.

Your support of the College as an alumnus, parent, or friend will continue the legacy and vision of the humble beginnings of Jefferson Hospital School of Nursing. In addition to providing aid and scholarships, your gift will help defray the costs of operating the programs of the College.

Annual giving of unrestricted funds provides resources that can be used immediately to meet the College's most important needs and opportunities — including financial aid and scholarships, faculty recruitment and retention, library resources, and maintenance and renovations of facilities. Your annual giving allows JCHS to solve problems as they arise and to seize unexpected opportunities.

As an alumnus of JCHS, you have the opportunity to be a leader of the College — the opportunity to share what you have learned, to support the next generation, and to show others the path for success. Your gift can change the future of healthcare education. Your support will begin the tradition of annual giving at JCHS. Your donation will offer resources to continue the impressive healthcare education and training that you once received.
